Meet Courtney Brush

Family Nurse Practitioner

Why did you choose health care as a profession?

"I don't know if any profession optimizes what it is to help someone more than a health care worker. The word 'caring' is inherent in the name and tells you exactly what you can expect. I get such enjoyment out of taking care of my patients. Watching my mother lose her battle with cancer, I have a high level of empathy and understanding for what a patient and family can go through. I want to help decrease my patients' anxiety."

What is your customer service philosophy?

"I believe the patient is central to everything in health care. I attach a lot of importance to patient service. I believe I have strong customer service skills and working with the public is something I enjoy. I treat every patient who comes through our doors as a family member."

What's one thing you tell every patient or customer?

"Never hesitate to call with a question. We are always here to answer any concerns that should arise."

What's the best part about your job?

"Having a capacity of knowledge as a nurse practitioner allows me to find an illness early and treat it. My rule is not just treating a disease or illness, it revolves around teaching a healthy lifestyle. This allows people to live longer and happier."

"My experience working in several different clinic settings has provided me with vast knowledge. My goal is to use that experience and knowledge to improve the health and well-being of the Lindenwood student community."
