Journal of International & Global Studies

Mission Statement: the Journal of International and Global Studies provides a multidisciplinary forum for the critical discussion and reflections on the consequences of globalization throughout the world. The editors welcome essays and book reviews that deal with globalization from economists, historians, political scientists, anthropologists, sociologists, geographers, linguists, religious, ethnic, or environmental studies specialists, cross-cultural education, media and communication researchers, or other humanities or social science scholars that have an international and global focus. One of our goals is to help undermine the fragmentation of specialization within the international academy by emphasizing broad interdisciplinary approaches to the comprehension of globalization in all of its many different forms and implications for different regions of the world.

Ethical Statement for the Journal of International and Global Studies

The editorial staff and editors of the Journal of International and Global Studies fully recognizes that the publication of an article in a peer-reviewed journal is an essential building block in the development of a coherent and respected network of knowledge. Therefore the staff and editors of the Journal of International and Global Studies concur that the standards of expected ethical behavior for all parties involved in the act of publishing essays: the author, the journal editors, the peer reviewers, and Lindenwood University Press.

The staff and editors of the Journal of International and Global Studies insist on the following ethical parameters for the publication of essays:

- That the corresponding author has the approval of all other listed authors for the submission and publication of all versions of the manuscript.
- That all the people recognized as authors have been included on the list of authors and everyone listed as an author has made an independent material contribution to the manuscript.
- That the work submitted in the manuscript is original and has not been published elsewhere and is not presently under consideration of publication by any other journal other than in oral, poster or abstract format.
- That the article does not contain material copied from anyone else without their written permission.
- That all material which derives from prior work, including from the same authors, is properly attributed to the prior publication by proper citation.
- That the manuscript will be maintained on the servers of the Journal and held to be a valid publication by the Journal only as long as all statements in these principles remain true.
- That if any of the statements above cease to be true the authors have a duty to notify the Journal as soon as possible so that the manuscript can be withdrawn.
