

Social Networking Guidelines

Lindenwood University | Last updated: July 2025

Getting started

Ask yourself what you expect the social media account to do for your organization or department, and how you'll measure your success. Do the research to choose the right social media platform for the job.

Some questions to ask yourself before getting starting:

- Who are you trying to reach?
- What kind of social interaction do you plan to have with this account?
- What will be the name of the page?

Use these answers to help decide the best social platform for your goals. The most popular social media platforms used by organizations today include Instagram, Facebook, and TikTok.

When creating your account, make sure your profile picture across all platforms meets Lindenwood University style and brand requirements.

The Lindenwood University brand guidelines (colors, font, logo) must be adhered to when creating profile identifiers and cover art for Lindenwood social media accounts. Consistent branding brings together the efforts of everyone at the university.

When you represent Lindenwood University on a social media platform, strive to include the following:

- Correct contact information
- Correct copyright information (when available): See the University Copyright Policy
- An approved Lindenwood logo
- Do you plan to be responsible for taking and posting photos on the page?
 - Keep in mind that any photography, illustrations, and artwork are considered intellectual property.
 - Any image used on the web must have the approval of the creator or be appropriately licensed.

- Questionable photography & artwork must be removed if so requested by the University Relations Department or Social Media Team.

Content Considerations

Choose an e-mail address that's safe for social networking. When creating a social media account, use an organizational/employee email address. Do not use a personal or a student e-mail address.

We require Lindenwood University be added as an admin of your Facebook page. This is merely an avenue for us to have easier access when assisting you in troubleshooting or more advanced personalization of your page.

To make Lindenwood University an Admin of your Facebook page, follow these instructions:

1. E-mail socialmedia@lindenwoodu.edu and Lindenwood social media administrators will “like” your page.
2. Once the page has been “liked” by administrators, you may log into your Facebook page and select Settings in the upper right-hand corner.
3. Select Page Roles from the Settings menu, and enter the facebook@lindenwood.edu e-mail address as an added editor.
